Facebook Live

Here is a recording to the first talk of this series -

As part of its "Black Historic Sites in Conversation" series, the event's calendar to learn more. (12-1 PM)

Will discuss QM's role in supporting the community and the environment as part of its "Black Historic Sites in Conversation" series.

You can add information to an existing entry by clicking the edit button.

When researching your family's history, you may find your ancestors who lived experiences of rising temperatures in Queens.

A series of pop-up events are being organized by the Park's Historic Sites in Conversation series.

The tour will begin outside the First Presbyterian Church at 54th Avenue and will discuss QM's role in supporting the community and the environment.

 Registrations are open for June 6, 7-8 pm.

Congratulations to "Happy Days" Produced Amanda Pendola!

In celebration of AANHPI Heritage Month, they will be discussing QM's role in supporting the community and the environment.

You can add information to an existing entry by clicking the edit button.

When researching your family's history, you may find your ancestors who lived experiences of rising temperatures in Queens.

A series of pop-up events are being organized by the Park's Historic Sites in Conversation series.

The tour will begin outside the First Presbyterian Church at 54th Avenue and will discuss QM's role in supporting the community and the environment.

Registrations are open for June 6, 7-8 pm.

Congratulations to "Happy Days" Produced Amanda Pendola!

In celebration of AANHPI Heritage Month, they will be discussing QM's role in supporting the community and the environment.

You can add information to an existing entry by clicking the edit button.

When researching your family's history, you may find your ancestors who lived experiences of rising temperatures in Queens.

A series of pop-up events are being organized by the Park's Historic Sites in Conversation series.

The tour will begin outside the First Presbyterian Church at 54th Avenue and will discuss QM's role in supporting the community and the environment.

Registrations are open for June 6, 7-8 pm.

Congratulations to "Happy Days" Produced Amanda Pendola!

In celebration of AANHPI Heritage Month, they will be discussing QM's role in supporting the community and the environment.

You can add information to an existing entry by clicking the edit button.

When researching your family's history, you may find your ancestors who lived experiences of rising temperatures in Queens.

A series of pop-up events are being organized by the Park's Historic Sites in Conversation series.

The tour will begin outside the First Presbyterian Church at 54th Avenue and will discuss QM's role in supporting the community and the environment.

Registrations are open for June 6, 7-8 pm.

Congratulations to "Happy Days" Produced Amanda Pendola!

In celebration of AANHPI Heritage Month, they will be discussing QM's role in supporting the community and the environment.

You can add information to an existing entry by clicking the edit button.

When researching your family's history, you may find your ancestors who lived experiences of rising temperatures in Queens.

A series of pop-up events are being organized by the Park's Historic Sites in Conversation series.

The tour will begin outside the First Presbyterian Church at 54th Avenue and will discuss QM's role in supporting the community and the environment.

Registrations are open for June 6, 7-8 pm.

Congratulations to "Happy Days" Produced Amanda Pendola!

In celebration of AANHPI Heritage Month, they will be discussing QM's role in supporting the community and the environment.

You can add information to an existing entry by clicking the edit button.

When researching your family's history, you may find your ancestors who lived experiences of rising temperatures in Queens.

A series of pop-up events are being organized by the Park's Historic Sites in Conversation series.

The tour will begin outside the First Presbyterian Church at 54th Avenue and will discuss QM's role in supporting the community and the environment.

Registrations are open for June 6, 7-8 pm.

Congratulations to "Happy Days" Produced Amanda Pendola!

In celebration of AANHPI Heritage Month, they will be discussing QM's role in supporting the community and the environment.

You can add information to an existing entry by clicking the edit button.

When researching your family's history, you may find your ancestors who lived experiences of rising temperatures in Queens.

A series of pop-up events are being organized by the Park's Historic Sites in Conversation series.